FORCES OF CROWN PRINCE FIGHTING DESPERATELY TO PREVENT CLOSING POCKET

Allies Practically Clear Wooded Stronghold Barring Way to German Base; Artillery Punishment of Enemy Resumed With Great Vigor Today; French Gain Two Thirds of Mile in Champagne.

DOCHE PRISONERS IN OFFENSIVE NOW 30,000

By Associated Press.
WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE AISNE-MARNE FRONT, July 27.—8:30 A. M.—The Franco-American forces on the front northeast of Chateau Thierry have driven the Germans almost entirely out of the wooded area which they have been so stubbornly defending. The Allied pressure is being constantly maintained and early today the punishment of the enemy by artillery fire was resumed with added vigor. Under the cover of the guns the Franco-American troops again began crawling forward.

The advance is bringing the Allies still nearer to the important road junction of Fere-en-Tardenois. It is being carried out through the remainder of the dense woods in this region and over the rain soaked fields and hills on the outskirts. Slowly retreating the Germans are fighting stubbornly as they retire.

Persistent as was the German rear guard defense, however, the enemy's most intense efforts to hold his lines are still being put forth on his flank in the Rheims-Soissons region.

General March Makes Announcement at Weekly Newspaper Conference.
WASHINGTON, July 27.—Trained competent American troops from France have begun to arrive in Italy. General March announced today at his regular conference with newspapermen.

Neither the number nor the place where they are to be used has been communicated to the War Department; the general said.
Two additional American army corps have been organized in France, General March announced. They are the fourth and fifth, commanded by Major Generals George W. Reed and Omar Bundy respectively.

Summing up the battle situation on the Aisne-Marne front General March said that it had resulted, according to official advice, in forcing the Germans back 18 miles, farther from Paris and shortening the Allied line by 10 miles.

The position on the flanks of the salient near Soissons and Rheims are relatively unchanged, General March said.
The German withdrawal from Chateau-Thierry toward the center of the salient continues and the import and German center of Fere-en-Tardenois is now within three and a half miles of the Allied line and under constant shell fire.

The most striking advance since last Wednesday, General March stated, was by the British forces west of Rheims. This advance of a mile and a half on a four mile front, he said, marked a special source of danger to the enemy, placing his forces to the south in an awkward position.

With 50,000 troops sent last week, the number of American soldiers transported overseas during July is expected to reach a record of 300,000, Secretary Baker and General March, chief of staff, today told members of the Senate Military Committee.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—The French advance on the Aisne-Marne front has reached a new stage, according to reports received today at the War Department. There is no doubt that the Allies will get what previous days have reached a critical stage.

SALT PORK IN MINNOW TRAP FATAL TO SNAKE

An unusual snake story is that told by J. Carl Bishop who has just returned from a fishing trip along the Yough river above Confluence. On his arrival there with A. J. Templeton and others he placed a minnow trap in a likely looking spot in a small stream. A small piece of salt pork was used for a bait. When he again visited the spot there wasn't a single minnow in the trap but instead a huge water snake, dead.

75,573 ACRES OF TAXABLE COAL IN FAYETTE COUNTY

Not Including That Still in the Hands of the Original Owners.

ONCE BANNER PRODUCER

Of the Region Has But Two Acres Remaining; Connellsville Has 57 Acres; Uniontown, 441; Luzerne Township the Leader With 16,466.

According to a statement issued today by the county commissioners Fayette county has 75,573.75 acres of unmined taxable coal. This includes only the acreage which has been transferred from the original owners to operating companies. The tabulation does not show the thin vein coal of the mountain townships, nor how much coal of the coking seam remains, undeveloped or is retained by farmers for their individual use.

A notable fact revealed by the statistics is that Lower Tyrone township, which in the early years of the coke region's history was the largest producing township of the county, has only two acres of taxable coal remaining. Fourteen or 15 years ago not a single acre of coal was reported as taxable in Uniontown. Now 441 acres are reported as remaining unmined within the city limits, Connellsville has 57 acres, all in the Sixth and Seventh wards.

The acreage in the several subdivisions of the county is as follows:

NINE OWNERS BLAMELESS

Jury Finds Death of Four Men at Smithfield Purely Accidental.

At the inquest conducted yesterday by Coroner S. H. Baum into the deaths of the four men who lost their lives when the roof of the Penn mine near Smithfield fell, the owners, William Brickman and Henry A. Porter, were exonerated from blame.

The jury found that James Jones, George Epler, Albert Collins and Arthur Conn came to their deaths by "accidental causes" and that the owners of the mine used every known method to safeguard the same. Coroner Baum was assisted in holding the inquest by Richard Maize, P. J. Walsh and Edward E. Girod, mine inspectors.

DRAFTED MEN CAN ENLIST

In the Marines If They Are in July or August Draft Calls.

The order issued to draft boards directing them to refuse permission to themselves to enlist in the Marine Corps or the Navy has been officially interpreted to mean that it applies only to men who have been called for movement to the training camps during the months of July and August.

All other registrants are entitled to release for the purpose of enlisting upon request to their local board. Provost Marshal General Crowder has announced that boards refusing to grant such permission to those entitled to the privilege will be sharply called to account.

BEGINNING OF FIFTH YEAR OF WAR SEES TIDE TURNING AGAINST TEUTONIC POWERS

Overshadowing All Else in Developments as Fourth Year Closes is Active and Extensive Participation of America in the Struggle; Collapse of Russia, Italian Defeat and German Drives in West Soon Will Sink Into Insignificance.

ALLIED RELIANCE IS LARGELY ON MEN IN KHAKI

By Associated Press.
Events big with the fate of nations have marked the fourth year of the war which now comes to a close, but none surpasses in effect the first great Allied offensive against the Germans begun a little over a week ago and still driving the Teutonic armies farther and farther from their objective, Paris. While it has been a twelve months of alternate hope and concern for the powers of the Entente the pendulum of fate now seems to be swinging toward the Allied cause.

In the developments of the past few days America has loomed large in the second great defeat of the Hun at the Marne. Side by side with the Allies the men in khaki have fought valiantly and successfully. Reports for several days have indicated a possibility of General Foch, the Allied supreme commander, trapping a considerable portion of the German army in the Marne salient into which the enemy drove in its last great offensive. If such should be, America will have had a large share of the glory.

Today finds the town of Fere-en-Tardenois, through which passes the only open line of communication of the German crown prince, almost within the grasp of the Allied forces. Indications are that the decisive battle of the war may be staged soon on the Marne front.

BOX CAR ALLOWANCE

Of 75 Cents Per Ton Applies Only to Wagon Mines.

According to an opinion of the general solicitor of the Fuel Administration the allowance of 75 cents per ton for coal loaded in box cars does not apply to cars loaded at upple mines. The additional charge box car loaders were authorized to make by an order of some months ago, applies only to wagon mines and is intended to cover the cost of hauling from mine to the siding, where the cars loaded.

Tippie mine operators, having understood that they were also entitled to make the 75 cents addition to the mine price when loading box cars, the meaning and intent of the order became a question which was referred to the general solicitor of the Fuel Administration who holds that this privilege is to be enjoyed by the operators of wagon mines only.

On account of war times and the scarcity of labor on the farms the Union Farmers' club has decided to hold its annual picnic in connection with the Grange's picnic Saturday, August 24, at the Dawson fair grounds.

This will reduce the number of holidays among the farmers, as the annual picnic of the Union Farmers' club was also always held on Saturday—the third Saturday in August, and is always attended by many farmers and their families of various parts of the county.

NOTED SPEAKERS COMING TO S. S. CONVENTION HERE

Mrs. Phoebe Curtis, Ohio Elementary Worker, Secured As One.

PHILADELPHIAN BOOKED

Pennsylvania State Elementary Superintendent on List of County Secretary Forthright, Union Negro Teacher Training Class to be Formed.

Speakers for the Fayette County Sunday school convention which will be held in Connelville September 15 and 16, are being signed up rapidly. Some of the best talent in the country has been secured and the way that the program is now shaping up, this convention will be the best ever held in Fayette county.

Mrs. Phoebe Curtis of Columbus, O., one of the best elementary workers in the country, and for some years elementary superintendent of the Ohio State Sunday School association, will be at the convention. The Pennsylvania State elementary superintendent, Miss Kane, of Philadelphia, will also be present. They are the leaders of this work in North America.

Other speakers known throughout the continent have been secured for the other divisions of the work. Announcements will be made from time to time.

The regular monthly meeting of the Connelville district executive committee will be held on Monday evening, July 29, at the home of Mrs. S. B. Dull, 113 South Cottage avenue.

At the last meeting of this committee 10 of the 12 members were present. This time it is hoped that every member of the committee will be present. Important matters concerning the county convention will be discussed and acted upon, and there are also several important matters concerning the district work to act upon.

One of the greatest achievements along the line of teacher training was started last Tuesday afternoon at the Fayette A. M. E. church on the West Side, at a meeting of representatives of the colored churches of Connelville.

B. S. Forthright of Wilkesburg, former county president, Joseph A. Strickler of Dickerson Run, and Jos. H. Forthright of Uniontown, representing the county association, launched a movement for the organization of a union teacher training class of at least 50 members from the colored churches. This movement was given hearty support by those present. The class will start to work very soon.

Monday evening there will be a meeting of pastors, superintendents and others interested in this work to go over the plans and work out all the details.

In every one of the schools Sunday a recruiting movement will be on to enlist members to take this course. The county secretary has promised to give this teacher training class a special recognition service at the county convention. A training class of 50 members recruited from every colored school in Connelville and vicinity, will attract attention throughout the state and country in religious educational circles.

TWO POUNDS A MONTH

To Be the Sugar Ration Beginning on First Day of August.

The Food Administration has asked consumers to make a further reduction in their sugar ration by limiting it to two pounds per person per month, beginning August 1. The present ration, fixed by an order issued about a month ago, is three pounds per person per month.

Household rationing will be voluntary, as at present, but public seating places will be required to observe new regulations, effective August 1, permitting the use of two pounds of sugar for every 96 meals served, instead of three pounds under existing regulations.

Must Not Hamper Threshers.
State Food Administrator Helms has given notice to motorists that they must not hamper the movement of threshing machines in the highways by compelling them to turn off into ditches to permit motor cars to pass.

Owners of cars may be within their legal rights, but delays in the threshing season count far too much for motorists to insist upon them when there is need of utmost efficiency in saving the crops.

J. B. Snyder Resigns.
Acting under a recent ruling of the National Headquarters of the American Red Cross, prohibiting men who are candidates for office in the fall election from retaining an official position in any Red Cross branch, J. Screened Coke Prices Revised.

Greens should not be blanched in hot water. They should be blanched in steam. This picture shows a simple method of blanching in steam by placing them in a colander in a receptacle with tightly fitting cover. There should be not more than an inch or so of water on the bottom of the receptacle and the water should not reach the greens. A Green Primer Camera is available for use in blanching greens. ## Satisfaction and Regrets

Which face do you wear? Are you the dissatisfied, unhappy man who is being continually stung by the poisonous fang of the mail order snake? Or are you the happy, satisfied, carefree countenance person who has enjoyed the confidence of your home merchant, who takes pains to satisfy your wants and to merit a return of your patronage? There is a vast difference between the two. The victim of the mail order snake regrets the shabbiness of his possessions, while the home-buying man ever rejoices in his personal appearance and the appearance of his home, for he bought from the merchants whom he knew were in business on a legitimate basis.

MORAL:—Don't ramble in the snake-ridden fields of foreign commerce; stay at home where the community is without these despicable pests.

At the Theatres

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE FACE IN THE DARK."—A Goldwyn attraction in which Mae Marsh is seen in one of her best roles is being shown today. The production, which is a picturization of Irvin S.
Cobb's widely read story, give the famous "whim girl of the screen" no end of opportunities to display her unmatched ability. Miss Marsh has the role of Jane Ridgeway, a motherless girl, whose father, unknown to her, is in league with a band of bank robbers. Happily Jane is spared the pain of knowing that her father was the chief actor in the robbery of a bank, for which her sweetheart is accused of the theft. Miss Marsh (a supported by Niles Welch, Alec B.
Francis, Harry C. Myers and other current stars. A selected comedy is also included. Monday and Tuesday Rita Jolivet will be starred in "Lest
We Forget."

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

"MADAME JEALOUSY."—Speaking of her newest Paramount photoplay, "Madame Jealousy," which appears at the Orpheum today, Pauline Frederick recently said: "It is perhaps a little incongruous for one who is used to disporting upon its evil effects, only to disport upon its evil effects, yet I feel that there may be some one who will misunderstand my attitude on the subject and I wish to make it perfectly clear that I regard Jealousy as the most devastating, obnoxious form of evil to which the human being is subject. The scenes in "The House of the Heavly Hours" (the house of Jealousy) and again in "The Garden of Delight" are especially startling."

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

"OVER THE TOP."—A Vitaphone super-feature founded on Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey's famous war book of the same title, will be shown here Monday and Tuesday. Sergeant Empey, probably the best known soldier of all the millions who have fought in the trenches of France to avenge the tide of German barbarism, appears as the star of "Over the Top," and he is said to enact vividly the stirring experiences met by the French and British who held the line against the Boche in the first mad months of the war.

Confluence.

CONFLUENCE, July 26.—Mr. and Mrs. G. R. McDonald and their granddaughter, Jean Weaver, and their guests, Mrs. Clara Taylor and son of Martinsburg, W. Va., all motored to Addison last evening and visited E. J. McDonald and family.
Mrs. H. L. Hostetter is very ill with rheumatism.

to visit her daughter, Catherine, who is in Connelville taking medical treatment.

Flanagan's sister, Mrs. J. C. Yonkin

Local IT. Sturge of Uniontown, Pa., well-known athlete and a former member of the Philadelphia Athletics, was wounded severely at the front July 2, according to a telegram received by his father, Attorney W. J. Sturge.

Lieutenant Sturge, who played with the Philadelphia club in 1912 and 1913, and who was well known in the local sports circles, was wounded during the first offensive at the front, and was sent to France shortly thereafter.

TO FORETELL FUTURE

USE OF WHITE OF EGG IS RECOMMENDED.

Those Who Are Tired of the Familiar Methods of Cards and Tea Grounds Might Find Some Amusement in the Practice.

This is one of the least known of all methods of foretelling the future, according to the ancient, secret wisdom of prophetic insight. Yet it is one of the most interesting, and easy to perform—though, of course, like all methods of the kind, some skill and practice are necessary in order to interpret quickly and speedily the symbolic interpretations of the signs presented, writes Prof. Sofianos Laillies in the New York American.

In order to practice this part of a holistic interpretation, you must procure a fresh egg—as new-laid as possible—and carefully separate the white of the egg from the yolk. Nearly fill a tumbler with cold water and drop the white of the egg into it, a drop at a time. Now place this glass carefully aside for 24 hours, being sure to cover the glass carefully, and that the water does not become warmed by proximity to a radiator, etc.

When you again look at the glass, you will find that your white of egg has congealed into various odd-shaped figures—circles, squares, animals, trees, crosses, etc.—which are to be interpreted according to the formula that follows.

Long, wavy lines denote losses and troubles; straight lines, on the contrary, denoting peace, long life, prosperity and happiness.

Squares denote peace and happiness; a ring, marriage. If a letter can be discovered near the ring this will be the first letter of the name of the person you are to marry. If clouds are about the ring, think long and carefully before accepting this person, even if he offers marriage.

If a leaf is seen, speedy good fortune will come your way from some unexpected source. If an anchor is seen, fidelity in love is indicated. If a dog is seen, this is a good sign, if near the top of the glass, denoting faithful friends; if near the middle, doubtful ones; and if near the bottom, enemies to be avoided.

Ailly or similar flower foretells happiness. If near the top of the glass, disappointment if near the bottom. If a number of small dots or spots are present, money is coming your way, unless clouds surround them, in which case you will receive bad tidings and notice of losses. A heart denotes a love letter which you will shortly receive. The sun, moon or stars denote happiness and success.

The Franks Most Go.

The secretary of the Minnesota state fair is authority for the statement that the "frank" show and the seasonal side show will not have place in the state fair of 1919. This form of entertainment is to be replaced by educational exhibitions, the step having been decided on by the American Association of Fairs and Expositions in convention at Chicago. It will be a great relief if the minds of children are not to be abnormally stimulated by these morbid, not to say revolting, sights. The idea that the poor monotony of nature should be exploited by means of their deformities is repulsive and productive of no good. The practice of allowing fakers to grow fat off proceeds from "showing" these unfortunate is a species of barbarism.

The atmosphere that pervades state fairs is a wholesome one that surrounds any of our national institutions, and it has always been a wrong to vitiate it by the clinical features of a freak show.—Minneapolis Journal.

A Quaint Idea.

A new idea was introduced in the display of the wedding gifts at a recent New York wedding—the reproduction, namely, in exquisite miniature, of the gifts that were too huge to be displayed on the black-oak tables in the hall.

Thus one of the gifts was an old English manor house. Reproduced to the last detail in a two-foot model, the gray manor house of the sixteenth century stood amidst the pearls and diamonds of the bride. An exceedingly picturesque sight.

Another gift was a very long gray torpedo touring car of six horse-power. The model, a perfect one, set on a gold-mounted dressing case, made all the guests' mouths water.

The bride's brother's gift was a riding horse, an Irish hunter. This model was done in clay by a girl sculptor. There were several other gifts also reproduced in miniature, among them a motor boat and a biplane.

Like a "Jack" Johnson.

Irvin S. Cobb, the correspondent and author, was talking in Philadelphia about the German "Jack Johnson" those deadly shells which exploded with a tremendous discharge of greasy black smoke.

"These shells," said Mr. Cobb, "are to ordinary shells, as a bucking horse of the plains is to a park hack. A tenderfoot once mounted a buck in the Tin Can. He was hardly on before he was off again—off over the buck's head."

"What's the matter?" said Three-Hoover.

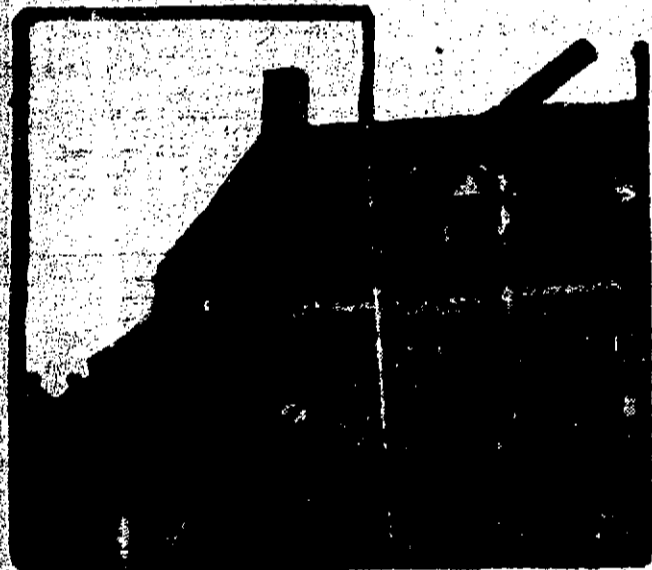

"Why, he bucked," said the tenderfoot.

"Bucked?" said Three-Hoover. "Buck?" "Go on! She only coughed."

Actor's Presence of Mind.

When something goes wrong on the stage the clever and experienced actor can always save the situation by taking. An old hand worked it one time like that. "Die, villain!" the hero said, and shot off his revolver at the villain's head. But the gun didn't go off. Six times the hero pulled the trigger, and not a single explosion took place. The audience was getting impatient when the actor struck an attitude and said: "Your pistol has missed fire. Be Reigned. But what difference does it make? The thought that I was hit shot has frightened me to death. And he pulled over and died."

GUN HIGHER THAN THE HOUSETOPS

One of the great British guns that have been instrumental in checking the German advance on the western front. A gun of this type is used only for long-range firing, and can fire to a distance of about 15 miles. They are placed far in the rear of the infantry.

TEACHES PEOPLE THIS IS OUR WAR

Community Service Idea Brings Home to Each Individual This Vital Truth.

CENTRALIZES ALL EFFORTS

Develops Businesslike Methods and a Community Sense of What That Service Means to Every National Appeal for Additional Funds.

By E. E. DUTTON.

An apparent result of participation in the community service program in which the United States has entered, all people are becoming more and more patriotic and more and more businesslike. And, apparently, we are just entering the outer regions of the movement.

To bring home to each community the very point that this country is at war with the "other side" of the world has been the problem confronting the leaders in these communities. In some places the war is interpreted as a vague, intangible thing, but in others it is a definite, practical matter. There are two outstanding methods of bringing the war home to the community.

One is the use of the "war chest" idea, which is a collection of money for the war effort.

First: The aptitude of developing some businesslike method by which the community, quickly and surely, can meet the steadily increasing demands that must be made upon every American city and town to support the great and small movements designed to protect our armies and give aid to war-torn peoples.

Second: The equally great or greater aptitude of building in each community a single practical organization that might bring to the whole an intelligent understanding of what this war means to America, and to develop a community sense of what this war means to each community to respond in a definite way to every national appeal for service.

Third: The aptitude of building in each community a single practical organization that might bring to the whole an intelligent understanding of what this war means to America, and to develop a community sense of what this war means to each community to respond in a definite way to every national appeal for service.

That money contributed to the War Chest was to contribute a fund for all war needs, raised from and distributed for the entire community regardless of race, creed or color.

In every community there develops at a period like this an unconscious desire to continue activities growing out of war-time demands. This desire develops the many impromptu, temporary and haphazard organizations that offer some of money for relief purposes from a limited number of persons. This right has grown out of the community's enthusiasm for the war.

purpose; conflict and duplication of effort are always apparent. Those who are fighting for funds or personal service under such a situation find it difficult to evaluate the relative merits of the various appeals.

There is always the distinct tendency on the part of the smaller and less important appeals to detract from the strength of the larger and more consequential calls. Furthermore, there is a great uncertainty among all citizens as to the time and amount of the next solicitation for funds. These conditions gradually develop confusion and disintegration of the community spirit.

Gradually there arises the feeling that community resources must be safeguarded. Conservation is the order of the hour. It applies as well to community effort as it does to the individual activities. Personal service and money must be preserved for the greater needs of the future.

This idea that community resources must be protected develops the very conclusive opinion that frequent campaigns in which teams canvass the community for money must be eliminated. A small group of people cannot indefinitely give so much of their time and services. The present system seems certain to break down or fail to reach the demands of the future. Some plan must be devised that will enlist the support of every individual or family in the community. Too many of the individualized campaigns touch only a very small percentage of the individual or well-to-do citizens.

Importance of the creation of some agency that will capably coordinate the direction of personal and financial service has been realized in scores of communities in the United States. Other hundreds and thousands of cities are coming to this point. The doubt and perplexity of the present must be evolved into enthusiasm and hope for the future.

Broadly as it may appear, the maying that "we cannot all go to the front and shoulder a gun" is true. Furthermore, it is quite commonplace to say that "each man do his bit." But it is not quite commonplace for each person to do or know how to do his "bit." The method is lacking. Means must be created whereby each person may enlist for the duration of the war. Some must enlist in the army and navy; some in the industrial army; some in the agricultural army and the big remainder in the moral, home personal service and financial army.

It must be possible for everyone to enlist for the war. Everyone wants to enlist for the war. Consequently there must be a coordinating agency, which will reach every man, woman and youth in the community—the small worker and giver as well as the large worker and giver; an agency that will interest and educate the entire community, increase thrift and develop among all the spirit of war service.

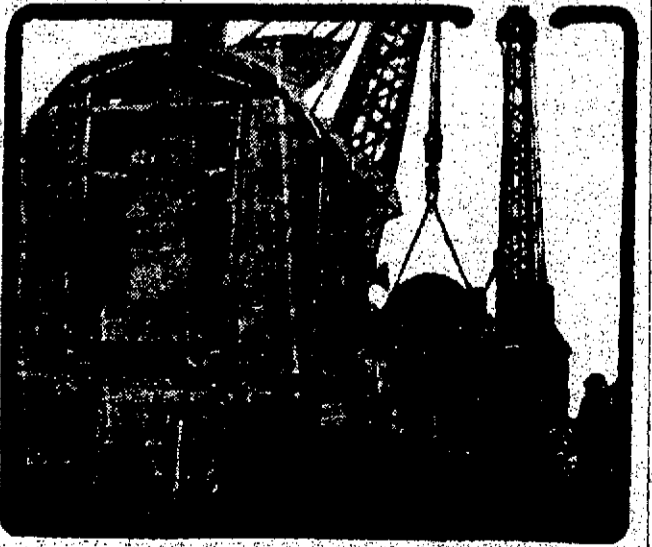

Need for Centralization. In those communities which have adopted the Community War Service plan these outstanding reasons, predicated on the fear that the community might not be able indefinitely to continue meeting the increased demands for increasing amounts from non-coordinated organizations for the formation of a centralized program developed.

First, each separate need made necessary a separate "whirlwind campaign," which drew heavily on the time of hundreds of solicitors, whose effort could be spent better in their regular occupations.

Second, this constant series of financial appeals was seriously making the time of those solicited, now when more than ever before that time should be conserved.

Third, no single organization was large enough to reach all the people. No single campaign, with a limited appeal for a single need, could reach all the people. As a result many thousands of men and women, who would have welcomed the opportunity to give, were overlooked.

Fourth, appeals for the larger and more vital needs were gradually being obscured by the multiplicity of smaller campaign appeals.

The solution recommends development of a single organization to raise one large fund through monthly payments by all the people. All wartime financial demands on the community to be met from this fund—the War Chest. No other solicitation for war needs to be permitted in the community for the rest of the year.

Advantages of the Plan.

What are the advantages of such a plan? These may best be stated by quoting from Samuel G. Hylthe's recital of "A Great Civic War Success."

"The advantages are apparent: Time and effort are economized. Fakes and unimportant needs are eliminated. The stopping of various drives makes possible one great annual drive, wherein all the energy of the city can be utilized and all the resources tapped."

Accomplishment of such a program means that a community system exists war giving and war support. The community determines the sum of money required for various war purposes not governmental, such as subscription to Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps, and gets that sum all at once providing for its disbursement in properly certified and useful directions when the call comes, relieving the citizens of the bother and inconveniences of various drives.

Objects of one of the prominent Community War Service programs, as outlined in its by-laws, are stated:

"To receive contributions from individuals, corporations, associations, firms and others and to disburse these contributions among the war needs that come to its attention and which receive its approval; to enlist and organize for war needs every man, woman and youth in the community and to enable each individual to do his duty according to his ability during the period of the war; to conserve and re-der most efficient the personal service and financial resources of the entire community through a single coordinating agency; to reduce to a minimum the number of money-raising campaigns; to insure adequate support for all future war needs; to interest and educate the entire community to encourage thrift; to fairly and equitably distribute the funds collected; to develop among all the spirit of war service."

In France, began on March 21. The German drive in France, while supported by periods of from a few days to several weeks, have been considered as different phases of the same offensive. The advance Austrian attack against Italy in June also is looked upon as merely another attack against the western front and not a distinct military operation. But these offensive packages never would have been launched had it not been for the collapse of Russia during the past winter. German and Austrian troops, released from the Russian front, were taken to France and Italy to swell the masses of men and to swell the masses of men and to swell the masses of men.

By this treaty Russia lost the province of Dobruja, on the south side of the Danube, which she had received after the Balkan war, and agreed to a rectification of her western frontier. Economic concessions also were made under pressure from the Teutonic Alliance.

The period between December 1, 1917, and March 1, 1918, may be called the period of peace tentativeness. It is true that before the end of the summer Pope Benedict made an appeal to the warring nations to enter into peace negotiations, the basis for negotiations being the restoration of Belgium and Serbia and the return to Germany of her lost colonies. This appeal, made on August 13, was answered by President Wilson on August 29, when the President announced that the German government as constituted could not be believed and that the United States was ready to enter into negotiations when the German people showed they desired peace and when they spoke through any authority which would be representative of them.

The German answer to the Pope's appeal reached the Vatican on September 21. It expressed hope that further warfare could be averted through the good offices of the Pope, but declined to enter into any engagement to meet what the Allies had declared to be their minimum war aims.

German efforts to secure a peace which would leave to Germany all the fruits of her victory gained through Russia's collapse, and with Belgium and large portions of France to be used as pawns at the council table, began with the address of Count Czernin, then Austrian foreign minister, at Brast-Litovsk, on December 24. The keynote of the address was general peace without annexation and indemnities.

On January 8, President Wilson, addressing Congress, said that the United States must know for whom the German rulers were speaking. The address was a complement to an address made on January 5 by David Lloyd George, the British premier.

To these addresses, reply was made by Imperial Chancellor von Hertling of Germany, and Count Czernin. The latter was pacific and conciliatory in tone, while the former, alluding to "the German sword," showed he was speaking for the militarists of the German people.

"Four Principles" Enunciated. To these replies there was rejoined by President Wilson, who on February 11, again addressing Congress, laid down what have come to be known as the "Four Principles" upon which peace can be based. Briefly, these principles were:

Final settlement must be based on essential justice. Peoples and provinces are not to be bartered about like chattels. Every territorial settlement must be for the benefit and in the interest of the populations concerned. All well-defined national aspirations shall be met with the utmost satisfaction consistent with the future peace.

Pope Benedict, in a pastoral letter issued at Easter, made another appeal for concord among the peoples of the world, but it brought forth no tangible results. At the Pope's behest, prayers for peace were offered in Catholic churches throughout the world on St. Peter's day, June 29.

In April there came revelations from Paris that Emperor Charles of Austria had written letters to Prince Sixtus of Bourbon, a relative. In these communications the Austrian monarch conceded the claim to Alsace and Lorraine and hinted that peace overtures would be welcomed.

As the result of this, Count Czernin, the Austrian foreign minister, was removed from office.

The most recent address on the subject of peace had been delivered in the German Reichstag, one by Dr. Richard von Kuehman, the foreign minister, and the other by Imperial Chancellor von Hertling. The former's sensational admission that the sword by itself could not bring peace resulted in his resignation, and von Hertling's address voiced the sentiment that as long as the Allies were intent upon "destroying Germany," the war must go on.

The Enemy Offensive. Last winter it became known that the Germans were massing forces on the western front. Reports came that the Germans were massing forces on the line and that new and more terrible engines of war than had been known before were to be used in German effort to break the Allied lines, crush their armies and force them to make peace.

The drive was well advertised and even the place where it was to be launched was known with comparative certainty. On the morning of March 21, the Germans began their attack from the vicinity of Arras, on the north, to La Fere, on the south, and centering their heavier columns against the British forces under General Gough at St. Quentin.

Staggering before the impact of the blow, the British army fell back rapidly. For eight days the Germans poured through the old Allied line in an effort to crush the British and drive a wedge between them and the French, who were holding the lines to the south. Then came a period of reaction and the Germans came to a stop. They had driven about thirty-five miles, along a front extending more than 50 miles before they were halted.

Hardly had their legions been held before, however, a new offensive was begun in Flanders on April 4. It drove the British back through Arras, but did not break their line. The British, with the French, who were rushed up to the front, stopped the German after they had reached the hills southwest of Ypres. Then, on April 9, the Germans suffered a terrible defeat that halted their offensive in that quarter.

Push to Supreme Command. In the midst of the drive in the sector toward Amiens the Allied nations took a vitally important step. They named General Ferdinand Foch, hero of the first battle of the Marne, as commander of the Allied forces on the western front, which included all the line in Italy as well as in France. From the Marne coast, in northern France, he has been held to be under his command.

After a period of quiet, the Germans attacked once more, this time on the Aisne river, and in seven days they reached the Marne at Chateau-Thierry, making a penetration of about 25 miles. At the Marne they were checked and the impetus of the blow was broken.

With hardly a day's pause for reorganization of their forces, the Germans again attacked, choosing the sector between Mondidier and Noyon, on the southern side of the salient driven into the Allied line during the March offensive, as the stage of their onslaught. This offensive ran for six days and was stopped north of Compiègne after losses which were described as unprecedented had been inflicted upon the Germans.

From June 14 until July 18 the Germans were engaged in shifting their forces and then they again struck. This time the line of attack was from Chateau-Thierry outward, around to the north of Rheims and then down the Vesle river to Prunay and from that village eastward to Mezieres. This attack at the close of the year developed into one of the most ambitious of the German strokes.

On June 15, the Austrians began a drive against Italy. It was a failure. The Austrians crossed the Piave, but on the west bank met with such stubborn resistance that progress was impossible. Slowly the Austrians were driven back toward the river, and then the Piave, swollen by rains in the mountains, completed the overthrow of Austria's hopes. After suffering terrible losses the Austrians retreated to the eastern bank of the Piave from the Montebello plateau to the Adige.

These Operations. Among the year's operations of comparatively lesser importance were the British drives in Palestine and Mesopotamia; the Turkish advance in the Caucasus; the French and Italian offensive in Albania; and the fighting in the German African colonies.

Jerusalem was captured by the British on December 10, and shortly afterward the fall of Jericho was announced. Since the taking of Jericho the British forces in Palestine have been active on the offensive.

General Maude led the British troops into Baghdad on March 11, and shortly afterward died of cholera. His forces pushed farther up the Tigris until the intense heat of summer rendered operations impossible.

The Turkish collapse of the Russian forces to advance through the Caucasus and obtain possession of the region subsequently ceded them by the treaty of Brest-Litovsk.
